Re: Informed Choice for participating in clinical training during the COVID-19 Pandemic

Dear Students,

The intent of this document is to provide guidance and information about options for navigating clinical training during this unprecedented time of crisis as our country and world grapple with the COVID-19 pandemic. We recognize that guidelines and local situations are changing rapidly, so we remind you to frequently check the Birthingway Coronavirus Update page on our website: <https://birthingway.edu/coronavirus-update/> for the latest information we can find. We also suggest that you keep up with local and state requirements regarding mask use, closures, physical distancing, and other public health measures.

Current Legal and Safety Status

Students considering providing care during this pandemic should consider their level of experience and whether their presence will be helpful to their preceptor. Students should also think about their own and their family's health risk and the potential of becoming a vector when making their decision. If they do choose to provide care, students should adhere to all PPE recommendations including use of masks, gloves, and frequent handwashing with soap and water.

Current recommendations are NOT to provide care to anyone experiencing respiratory symptoms, even mild ones. If a client is having symptoms of COVID-19, then the client should contact their primary care provider so that the provider can assess whether in-person treatment is necessary and a referral to the hospital is warranted. Preceptors and students should not provide services to clients if the provider or student have any symptoms of potential infection with coronavirus, even mild ones, or have had any presumptive exposure.

Individual preceptors may create more stringent requirements for their practices.

The Oregon Midwifery Council (OMC) has shared a very informative resource on coronavirus, with information specific to midwives and community birth: Midwives and COVID-19.

This is a new virus for humans to cope with, which means that we have no immunity developed yet. It is not "just like the flu," being both more contagious and more deadly than influenza. Being young is not a protection. Students who choose to continue to provide care must be aware that Birthingway does not have the ability to protect them from exposure.

What we know at this time is that asymptomatic people CAN and DO spread the virus. That is why social distancing and staying home as much as possible is such an effective tool for limiting spread to manageable levels. Birthingway encourages our students, staff, faculty, and other community members to monitor and follow recommendations on the CDC website, as well as local and state health departments, and midwifery professional organizations.

Clinical Training

As of July 15, 2020, “NARM will allow two virtual clinicals to apply to the Continuity of Care clinical requirements for CPM candidates for each Continuity of Care Client: one prenatal in the final trimester and one postpartum done anytime between 24 hours and six weeks post birth. Guidelines for documentation are available at NARM.org.” All other clinical requirements for NARM certification remain unchanged.

Currently, Birthingway WILL ALLOW students to count virtual prenatal and postpartum appointments as direct client care for Clinical Training Credits (CTC) IF they are a full participant in the appointment. All labor, birth, and immediate postpartum care must be provided in person for the experience to count for either NARM or Birthingway graduation requirements.

While it is tempting to skirt requirements during times of stress and provider shortages, Birthingway is clear that preceptors and students must continue to adhere to all current policies regarding supervision. In addition, preceptors must not penalize students for choosing not to attend clients in-person.

Confirmation of Understanding

- I understand that Birthingway does not require students to travel or to provide any clinical care during this time of increased risk from the COVID-19 pandemic.
- As a healthcare worker, I am aware that I am under increased risk for contracting COVID-19. Birthingway is not liable for any outcome or expenses of students who might become infected with COVID-19 as a result of providing clinical care.
- I have assessed the risk to myself and my loved ones and discussed these and other safety issues with my preceptor.
- During this pandemic, I am still required to adhere to my scope of practice as a midwifery student, as outlined by Birthingway, including requirements for direct supervision, and by my state regulations.
- I understand that Birthingway staff are available if I have questions and I have asked any questions I have at this time.
- I understand that I have the choice not to participate in Clinical Training this term and that I may speak to my advisor about taking a Leave of Absence if I choose to stop my clinical training.

Wishing you continued health and well-being,
